ABSTRACT

The system and method control packet behavior by incrementing buckets associated with packet type and decrementing one bucket when a packet type associated with that bucket is transmitted. If a bucket count falls below a threshold value, an associated packet is dropped.